

TY COBB IS FINED $50 FOR DISTURBING PEACE

Detroit, Mich., June 25.—A fine of $50 for disturbing the peace was imposed upon Ty Cobb, Tiger star, when he appeared before Jolice Justice Jeffries and, through his attorney, entered a plea of guilty to the charge.

Howard Harding, the butcher's helper, with whom Cobb engaged in a fist fight, following the altercation with Carpenter, also announced today that he would bring civil action against Cobb.

The girl, whose name police declined to reveal, told of yielding to the representations of a well-dressed stranger on the downtown streets, accompanying him ostensibly to visit his sister and then a flight of days to escape from a house of ill-fame, where she was brutally mistreated and forced to assume the attitude of a woman of the demimonde. Three women and four men were arrested in the raid today.

ALAS, HOW COULD HE?

Wife—If Adam had put a dollar in a savings bank at compound interest, just think what it would amount to by this time.

Husband—You forget, my dear, that Adam was a married man.

WE GET THE WRONG STEER

Out in the country, don't you know,
We always hear the cattle low;
And back in town again, we sigh,
To find that beef is awful high.
